

GEDYON — DAILY WORKOUTS, ALL 45 WEEKS

Companion to the 45-Week Build. Every day written out. Paces shown assume each tier gate is PASSED at its earliest week — if a gate isn't passed yet, keep using your current tier's paces for every session (the structure stays identical). WHOOP gates every day: yellow = one quality max + HR caps, red = easy/rest and the session moves. Generated Sep 3, 2026 — ramp-in below, Week 1 starts Mon Sep 7.

HOW TO RUN EVERY PIECE — THE DETAILS THAT MAKE IT WORK

Same workout, different execution = different training. Two habits to break, named directly: (1) the 20-minute one-pace warm-up/cool-down — a long slog at a single moderate pace is junk volume that tires you before the work and blunts recovery after it; warm-ups are short and PROGRESSIVE, cool-downs are short and SLOW. (2) jumping straight into the work — the first rep on cold legs runs on the wrong energy system, spikes HR, and makes every following rep worse. The strides at the end of the warm-up ARE the ignition — they are not optional decoration.

PIECE	HOW FAST	HOW LONG	REST / STRUCTURE	WHY IT MATTERS
WARM-UP (quality days)	PROGRESSIVE: first 5min at recovery shuffle (10:30+), middle at slow-easy (10:00), last 5min at the FAST end of easy (9:30). Never one flat pace.	12-15min (2mi) — not 20+. More is not better; it is withdrawal from the workout.	Finish with the prescribed strides, take 2min of walking/standing AFTER the last stride, THEN start rep 1.	Raises muscle temp and opens the aerobic system without spending it. The 2min gap lets HR settle so rep 1 starts honest.
STRIDES	Build through each one: jog the first 5s, fast by 10s, at ~mile race effort (NOT sprint) for the last 10s. Tall, quick, relaxed — if your face or shoulders tighten, it is too fast.	20 seconds each, 6x on easy days, 4x pre-workout.	60-90s WALK between — full recovery, never jog-loop straight into the next one.	Recruits fast-twitch fibers and sharpens mechanics with zero fatigue cost — but only if each one is rested and relaxed.
REST BETWEEN 1000m REPS	STANDING or slow walk. Hands on hips, breathe. Not a jog.	60-75s (build weeks) / 90s (deloads). Time it — cutting rest short turns threshold work into a race.	Start the next rep when the clock says, not when you feel ready (that is what the rest length is calibrated for).	Threshold reps only work at threshold. Short rest or hot reps push lactate past the zone and you train the wrong system.
REST BETWEEN HILL REPS	Walk down. Fully. No jogging the descent.	The full walk-down (~90s-2min). If you are still breathing hard at the bottom, stand another 30s.	Every rep at MAX effort requires full recovery — 8 great reps beat 12 tired ones.	Hills train power. Power needs a fresh nervous system every rep — tired hills are just slow intervals with injury risk.
FARTLEK FLOATS	The 90s float is a SLOW jog (10:00+), not a steady run. The surge is only a surge if the float is real.	90s between 3min hard bouts.	Hard bouts at tempo effort; the mid-surge gear change is 30s FASTER within the bout, then back to hard — never all-out.	Teaches gear changes for laps 2-3 of the mile. Floats too fast = one long moderate run = nothing trained.
COOL-DOWN	SLOW. Recovery shuffle, 10:30+/mi, slower than feels dignified. It is a flush, not a run.	10min (1-1.5mi) after quality. NOT 20min — after a hard session, extra time on your feet is cost, not fitness.	Optional: 5min walk at the end. Then eat within 30min.	Clears metabolites and starts recovery. Running it at easy pace (9:30) quietly adds load to your hardest days — the opposite of its job.
EASY RUNS	9:30-10:15 (current tier). Talk test: full sentences OUT LOUD. HR 125-140.	As prescribed — no bonus miles.	No structure needed — this is the one place "just go run" is correct.	The engine is built here, at low cost. Run these too fast and Tuesday/Friday degrade — the classic self-sabotage loop.

WU/CD paces above are for your CURRENT tier (T1). When a tier gate is passed, shift them with it: warm-up always ends at the fast end of that tier's easy band, cool-down is always ~60s/mi slower than easy. The quality-day template never changes: progressive WU -> strides -> 2min settle -> work -> short slow CD.
